Dear Sir:

By accident, I came across a copy of the Middlebury College News Letter - Volume 42, No. 1, Autumn, 1968, and in this edition there is an article (The Negro Revolution - Middlebury) which pointed out that my brother, the late Gladstone L. Chandler '26, is the second Black person to graduate from Middlebury College, and also my very, very good friend, Emile T. Holley '25, who was the first.

There are many other interesting points in this particular article that I would like to have; and therefore, I'am asking you to send me at least one copy of this edition. I will be very happy to pay all charges incurred. Incidently, I noticed that there wasn't any information about my brother's son, Gladstone L. Chandler, Jr. who graduated from Middlebury College in the 1950's. My reason for bringing this question up is to find out whether or not there have been other children or descendents of Black graduates attending Middlebury College.

I graduated from Bates College '25 and was very much aware of the Black students at Middlebury and the activities of Vermont during that time.

Sincerely yours,

Eric B. Chandler
